configuration possibilities are almost endless

Intrigue is an attractive, lightweight beam system combining flexibility and utility. The system has been developed using as few components as possible, all of which are specific to the system, making Intrigue easy to specify, build, use and upgrade.

The combination of beam, post and leg at the heart of Intrigue has many standard features which reduce hidden costs. The height adjustable leg is non-handed to facilitate reconfiguration. The beam provides rigidity within the system, has ample cable management capacity and allows power/data cabling between workstations. The multi-functional post allows easy addition of overhead storage and shelving. Combined with the adaptable structure, Intrigue's range of top shapes is ideal for large open plan offices, providing the right combination for any working environment. Shared componentry reduces cost, ultra-lightweight tiles provide varying degrees of privacy, and a combination of storage complements the system. Mobile tables increase flexibility, allowing the creation of casual meeting/breakout areas, as well as facilitating new ways of working.

Intrigue has the ability to adapt almost instantly to new work arrangements providing a multiplicity of solutions for the office interior. Adding a glazed screen panel extension or a desktop extension, or creating a glazed 'wall' meeting area can all be achieved easily without fuss or disruption.
